Mark Grieco is an attorney, a member of the Florida Bar, and senior partner at Grieco & Scalera, PA, a firm specializing in contracts, software, corporate, real estate, trusts and estates, family law, intellectual property and insurance litigation. In addition to his law practice, Grieco is a worldwide lecturer in the field of contract law, legal negotiations, software agreements and purchasing. He has been an educator for the Institute for Supply Management for over 13 years. He has taught business professionals for such diverse companies as Disney, FP&L, Holcim, Sony, Kodak, Oracle, Coca-Cola, and GE. He also works with companies to standardize contracts and teaches in-house courses.

Grieco has published two books — one on divorce entitled, Divorce: a four letter word and another book on contracts entitled, Purchasing, Contract Law, UCC & Patents. He is working on his third book and has just finished a course covering over 100 contract terms and conditions. He also works with companies to standardize contracts and teaches customized in-house courses. Grieco has an undergraduate degree in business and an MBA from Texas Tech University and he has a Juris Doctor degree from Quinnipiac University.
